1. Introduction

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week resistance training program on the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy young adults. The subjects were 15 male and 15 female college students, aged 18-25, who were randomly assigned to either a resistance training group or a control group. The resistance training group performed a 12-week program of resistance training, while the control group performed no exercise. The subjects were tested at baseline and at 12 weeks for strength and endurance. The results showed that the resistance training group had significantly greater strength and endurance than the control group at 12 weeks. The findings suggest that a 12-week resistance training program can improve the strength and endurance of the lower extremities in healthy young adults.

or printer for a better quality second a no-name inkjet model?

By Tom Ichniowski, Editor

It's a common belief that inkjet printers are the best choice for home users. But when it comes to the price/performance ratio, a laser printer is often the better choice. Here's why.

First, let's look at the cost of ownership. A laser printer typically costs more than an inkjet, but it's a lot cheaper to run. A laser printer uses a toner cartridge that can last for thousands of pages, while an inkjet cartridge typically lasts for only a few hundred pages. This means that a laser printer can save you a lot of money in the long run.

Second, laser printers are faster than inkjet printers. A laser printer can print a page in about 10 seconds, while an inkjet printer can take 30 seconds or more. This means that a laser printer can save you a lot of time when you're in a hurry.

Third, laser printers are more reliable than inkjet printers. A laser printer has fewer moving parts than an inkjet printer, which means it's less likely to break. This means that a laser printer can save you a lot of money in the long run.

So, if you're looking for a printer that's fast, reliable, and cheap to run, a laser printer is the better choice. If you're looking for a printer that's cheap to buy, an inkjet printer is the better choice.
